 - Business architecture is a concept explored in detail in Moore's Dealing with Darwin. "Organizational structure based on prioritizing one of two business models (Complex systems model and Volume operations model). Innovation types are understood and executed in completely different ways depending on which model an enterprise adopts." - If you're having trouble accepting this fact, it really is helpful to watch it on video. One extremely detail-oriented blogger took one video and broke it down, second-by-second, to see where the time went: "You lose between 2 and 5 seconds every time you move the pile around between steps. Also, you have to
